

BLAINE TO ADDRESS PROGRESSIVE BODY OF VIROQUA WOMEN

Governor and Mrs. Blaine City's Guests Saturday; Thomas
Dahl Marries in Norway

VIROQUA, Wis.—Governor and Mrs. John J. Blaine will be guests of this city on Saturday. The governor will speak at the Opera house, in the interest of the Woman's Progressive organization. Miss Ada James of the Wisconsin Woman's Progressive organization, and Miss Thompson, secretary and state organizer, will also be guests of honor. The initial steps have been taken to establish a woman's progressive organization in this city. Two meetings have been held at the Farmers' bank to discuss ways and means. Arrangements are being made for the entertainment of Governor and Mrs. Blaine during their visit in this city.

Colonel O. G. Munson, Senator Bennett and Luther M. Roseland of this city are attending the session of the Wisconsin legislature. Colonel Munson has again been honored with the appointment of chief clerk of the senate, a position which he formerly held. Mr. Roseland as member of the assembly, will return to this city once a week to attend to official duties as city mayor.

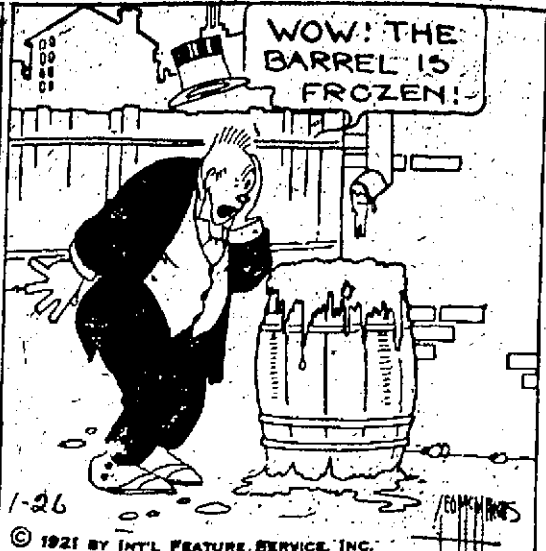

Marries in Norway
From Milwaukee, Norway, comes the announcement of the marriage of Thomas Dahl, a prominent Viroqua merchant, to Miss Ragnhild Solverson of Flikkejord. For several years, the bridegroom, in partnership with Adolph Scorsen conducted the Farmers' store in this city. A few months ago, Mr. Dahl having sold his interest in the store, returned to his native country for a visit. It is thought by Viroqua relatives that Mr. Dahl will return with his bride to the United States within a few months.

The funeral of August J. Smith, one of Viroqua's pioneer business men and well known citizens, was held at the old Bangor home on Monday afternoon at 2 o'clock. When a young man Mr. Smith established himself in the hardware business in this city, which business he conducted continuously, until a few years ago, when he retired, because of failing health. The firm still exists as the Smith Hardware company, being conducted by Charles Parker, a son-in-law of the deceased. In the fall, Mr. Smith accompanied by his daughter Fay left this city to spend the winter months at San Diego, California, where he passed away from a paralytic stroke, living but a few hours after having been stricken. Survivors of him are the two daughters, Miss Fay Smith and Mrs. Charles A. Parker, and two grandsons, Edward and Richard Parker of this city. A sister, Mrs. Little, who was spending the winter with her brother at San Diego also survives, with other near relatives.

The condition of Henry Johnson, local grocer, who awoke from a forty-eight hour sleep in a state of exhaustion, unable to remember or recognize anyone, remains unchanged, and his recovery seems unlikely. Mr. Johnson is being cared for at Waukesha, Wis.

Baboons Afraid of Airplane
Norman Chase, an English traveler, says at Karamah, he noticed a number of baboons which were in the vicinity showing unmistakable signs of fear. They cowered together and whimpered, giving every indication that something unusual had disturbed them. Mr. Chase's dog, a well bred Airline, and known to be plucky and fearless also became uneasy, and appeared to be in dread of something. On looking round for the cause of all the trouble, Mr. Chase observed the airplane flying overhead at a comparatively low altitude. The sound of the engine and the huge birdlike appearance of the plane no doubt upset the equilibrium of the baboons.

Acute indigestion is caused by eating decomposed canned goods or tainted meats; food that is hard to digest; eating too rapidly and not chewing the food properly; or excessive indulgence in spirituous liquors. Swallowing liquids which are either too hot or too cold may also cause this trouble.

Persons most liable to acute indigestion are those who live in bad hygienic surroundings; those who are subject to gout or rheumatism; or those who have chronic indigestion.

An attack of acute indigestion is usually ushered in by a feeling of uneasiness, or fullness and distress in the stomach; a lump in the throat that disappears on swallowing and immediately returns again; and there may be also thirst, nausea, vomiting, and the belching of gas or liquid, and sometimes the vomiting of undigested food.

The tongue is usually coated, and there may be headache, dizziness, drowsiness, or extreme nervousness. The bowels may be either loose or constipated, and the patient may have pain in the stomach and abdomen. There may also be a craving for sour drinks.

The patient should be made to vomit by giving large drafts of warm water, either plain or mixed with mustard (a teaspoonful of mustard to a glass of water, one cup of water followed by others until the desired result is obtained. Warm salt water may also be found useful for the same purpose.

After the stomach has been emptied and hot water can be retained for half an hour, give a dose of bicarbonate of soda. Hot poultices over the region of the stomach and abdomen will relieve the pain, should any exist.

The patient should be kept in bed and the stomach given an absolute rest for about 24 hours, after which boiled milk or liquid food only may be administered for a couple of days. A full diet should be resumed very slowly.

Swallowing a Penny

Q. My little girl swallowed a penny. I gave her a large dose of castor oil, and have been giving her lots of milk to drink. Do you think there will be any ill effects from it? She is just past three years of age.

A. I am glad to be able to tell you that the penny your little girl swallowed will probably do her no harm. It is not necessary to give her any emetics. Instead, her diet should be liberal, and should include oatmeal, bread and vegetables. Food of this sort leaves considerable residue which will be useful in passing the penny along the intestines. She may have a little colicky pain, but in the majority of cases there are no symptoms whatever. The object swallowed is usually recovered from the stool in from four to ten days, but it may require a considerably longer time to pass through the intestines.

Urine Stains

Q. My little boy, age 1 month, urinates about every 20 to 30 minutes during the day, and several times at night. It leaves a dark brown stain and has an odor like strong ammonia. Can you tell me how to remedy this condition, and cause, and if serious?

A. The dark brown stain left by your baby's urine may have very little significance. On the other hand it may indicate some infection, local irritation, or systemic disease. I advise you to have a specimen of the urine examined. The order of ammonia in urine is frequently due to decomposition, though it may at times indicate an excess of fat in the diet. Watch your boy's weight to see if he is gaining as he should.

Enlarged Glands in Neck

Q. Can you send me some information regarding enlarged glands in a child's neck, due to some infection from the tonsils, how same can be prevented, and what course of treatment to be followed after the glands have become swollen?

A. If the enlarged glands in your child's neck were infected from the tonsils, the best way to prevent reinfection from the same source would be to have the tonsils removed. Whenever the child has an acute catarrh, the nose and throat should be kept as clean as possible by spraying or syringing with simple solutions. The treatment of swollen glands depends upon the nature of the infection, and whether the inflammation is simple, or goes on to suppuration.

Care of a Sick Child

That the mind affects the body is generally admitted. That the body also affects the mind is equally true, and is particularly noticeable in the case of a sick child, which, of course, makes no effort to conceal its feelings. A child's state of mind, therefore, is a good indication of its health. According to Dr. A. Levison of Chicago, a child's illness may be diagnosed to a certain extent by its mental symptoms and it cannot be properly cared for except by one who understands the psychology of a sick child.—Denver Times.

HANSON BILL ADDS SEVERAL MILLIONS TO STATE REVENUES

Asks Repeal of Personal Property Offset to the Income Tax

By Fred L. Holmes

MADISON, Wis.—The repeal of the personal property offset to the income taxes of individuals and corporations as proposed by Assemblyman C. E. Hanson of Pierce county will add from $3,000,000 to $5,000,000 to the revenues which will be collected in taxes in Wisconsin. This is one of the big tax reform bills of the session. By the terms of the income tax law enacted by the state in 1911, the amount of taxes assessed against an individual or corporation as personal property could be used as an "offset" against their income tax assessment.

Ten years' experience shows that 43 per cent of the income taxes assessed in the state are "offset" and that only 57 per cent of the income taxes assessed are collected in cash. The total amount of income taxes levied in Wisconsin from 1913 to 1920 inclusive was $53,142,255.14. Of this amount $29,697,259.10 was collected in cash. In 1920 the amount of the "offset" amounted to $5,271,606.11. From this data it is evident that for the seven years from 1913 to 1920 the average amount of the "offset" amounted to over $3,000,000 annually.

There is a great demand on the part of the state to find new revenues to meet the increased cost of government. The various boards, departments, institutions and educational establishments of the state have fled requests with the legislature for $71,036,482 for the biennium. To meet these requests the present sources of taxation in the state, if not changed, would produce $56,000,000. The sum of approximately $15,000,000 would have to be raised elsewhere. The legislature plans to reduce the requests of the departments by a considerable sum, but there will still be a need for other tax sources to meet this demand. Assemblyman Hanson is proposing the repeal of the "offset" to the income tax law. This bill is one of the big measures of the session. It was recommended by Governor John J. Blaine in his message and it has the approval of the state tax commission. Such a bill was defeated in the legislature two years ago by a close vote. It will be the subject of long debate.

Automobile Body Polish
A much recommended automobile body polish is made by mixing the following ingredients and will commend itself to motorists who like to keep their cars in good condition:
Turpentine, 1 gallon; paraffine oil, 1 pint; oil of citronella, 3 1/2 ounces; oil of cedar, 1 1/2 ounces; Another scheme is to use a mixture of Bell's linseed oil and turpentine, applying it sparingly and rubbing it absolutely dry.

COLD IN THE HEAD RELIEVED AT ONCE BY TURPO

This Preparation Checks a Cold in the Head at Once, Prevents
It Developing Into a More Serious Cold, Relieves Congestion and Inflammation.

The right way to treat a cold is to check it at the very beginning. Apply Turpo as soon as it appears as a cold in the head, with the typical running nose, dull headache and sneezing. Turpo is known as the Turpentine Ointment, because turpentine forms one of its principal ingredients. In addition to distilled turpentine there are two other very well known remedies in Turpo—Camphor and Menthol. The three are so combined in a mineral base, as to give best effects for the relief of all colds and congestion.

When Turpo is placed up the nostrils you inhale it immediately, and actually feel it clearing up the secretion in the air passages, and reducing the swelling and congestion. In this way Turpo checks a fresh cold at the very root of the trouble.

For severe colds Turpo is rubbed on the throat and chest. It sinks right through the skin, carrying the remedy to the seat of the inflammation or congestion, and relieving the cold overnight. Turpo is a splendid counter-

Community Spirit

WE recommend to your earnest consideration the statement made by S. P. Markle elsewhere in this issue, in discussing La Crosse county's showing in the state corn and grain show. "Of course a fellow likes to win," he said. "But to have La Crosse county beat the other counties in the state—that is what really counts."

Mr. Markle spent considerable of his time before the corn show giving the benefit of his show experience to rivals at the present exhibit. He knew that those he helped might beat him when it came to the judging—one of them did, on one exhibit that he helped to prepare. But beyond his own desire to capture premiums and ribbons was his affectionate and loyal enthusiasm for his community. If S. P. Markle couldn't win, it was up to him to see that somebody else in La Crosse county took the honors. The county came first with Mr. Markle.

It seems not unreasonable to suppose that the existence of this spirit among the county's farm leaders has something to do with the fact that La Crosse county has contracted the habit of winning at all sorts of state farm shows. Any community inspired with such unselfish loyalty would be bound to be a winner. We note the success of the co-operative spirit in the agricultural way as a very fine example for La Crosse county and city—to follow in its other undertakings. It seems to be a method that gets results.

An Orange-Lemon Tree

THE sensations of a tree which started out by being one fruit, became metamorphosed, in its upper parts, into another, and then in turn came back to the first, can be better imagined, as the saying goes, than described. This is a common tree experience in citrus districts of California. The explanation is that the lemon can be grafted onto the orange, and the orange onto the lemon.

This is not to say that an orange-lemon-orange tree bears better oranges than a straight orange. It doesn't. In fact, no difference in the fruit, one way or the other, is observed. The obtrusion of lemon in the trunk resulted from grafting in the grower's plans. He started out to grow lemons. He used trees in which the lemon had been budded in on, say, sour Florida stock. When these trees had attained some growth, some consideration, possibly market conditions, influenced him to wish his trees were not lemons, but oranges. So he budded them over.

Quite a little of this is being done now in California. Recently oranges have been more profitable than lemons.

Old hands in the citrus industry say that when the occasional hard freeze comes that "murder outs." They say that the orange with some intervention of lemon is usually the harder hit.

Honesty the Rule

ALBERT one expects politicians to speak with one eye on the ballot box and the other on the measure in hand, the condition is not wholly bad. Because, for instance, the politician's vote-sense tells him to do what the majority prefers, and if democracy is sound mass judgment approximates the right, albeit mass prejudice may deflect the rudder at intervals. Nor need we despair because some politicians at times appeal to emotional prejudices, and others are wont to attempt to mislead the majority as to what it wants and needs. Measured by the full span of any given issue, the people appear to have been safe and sound in both instinct and judgment. Indeed, politicians are not as a lot dishonest, and this goes to both right and left. It is true that the liberal wing is handicapped by the natural attraction it has for reds and incompetents and all the wild-eyed horde of misfits and discontents. It is equally true, that the conservatives suffer because owing to their cautious attitude toward proposed changes, the class of special interests that desire nothing more than to be "let alone" turn naturally to them as most likely to fall in with their efforts to trip the longer and more hasty strides of progress. But, we repeat with conviction, neither the liberals nor the conservative politicians are dishonest as classes, but rather are representative of opposing types and mental processes. For instance, one may safely say at random that the most radical member of the Wisconsin legislature, and the most conservative, are upon one and the same level of integrity.

Politics has its tricks. It is deemed expedient by politicians on both sides to brand their opponents as crooks and scoundrels. The thing has been done until the rank and file on both sides suspect there is something in it. But men of the type elected to the legislature know better, and they should drop this fiction of the election period, and get down to business, together, each profiting by the chance to measure his ideas against those of one who disagrees in whole or in part. Seldom has there been a more important session. Bills should have full consideration, upon their merits, uncomplicated by political angles. They should be assayed in the light of every candid argument, pro and con. If the legislature resolves itself into opposing political cliques, and groups vote solidly by caucus dictation, the session will become, not a solemn conference of men bent upon the business of the state, but merely the beginning of a political campaign. Unless common sense asserts itself, a great opportunity may be wasted.

Take a Tip from Ben

RIGHT now our school children are hearing a deal about Ben Franklin, one of the very best Americans who ever lived. They are being told some things Ben Franklin said. Among them is this gem:

"If you're in debt spend less."

It is all right to teach this to our children, but it isn't right to preach it to them when we grown-ups aren't practicing it.

The nation is in debt—heavily in debt. We face a deficit of two billions of dollars this year. And we are doing this:

"Our naval estimates for 1921 are nearly $700,000,000, as compared with naval appropriations of about $400,000,000 in Great Britain and about $150,000,000 in Japan."

There are three and a half million children starving in Europe. Herbert Hoover says less than the cost of one modern battleship would save the lives of these children.

Who do you think Ben Franklin would talk thrif to if he were here today? To the American school children, or to members of your congress?

Greek diplomats gravely deny that King Tino is to visit Smyrna. They claim the story that he has a date there is a figment of the imagination.

There's no fun recalling the gay times that cost money in 1920—especially when you're doing it for the income tax blank.

Maybe Lenin will come along soon with a statement that the rumors of his death are greatly exaggerated.

THE ENGAGEMENT OF JOHN HENRY

BY H. LOUIS RAYBOLD

Every youth in town except John Henry had a girl. Some, like his classmate, George Baker, had more than one. Yet John Henry was no woman hater. He was merely afflicted with so bad a case of bashfulness that the very thought of asking a girl if he might call was sufficient to cause him to palpitate inwardly and outwardly to mop his brow.

His only acquaintance with lovely women was through the medium of books. In fact, so omnivorous a reader was John Henry that he had exhausted the resources of his home town of Hamden and had taken to spending his evenings in Milford, the neighboring community, which boasted a young library of several thousand volumes.

It was on his return from such an expedition that John Henry was met by his cousin George, who had been calling on a Milford girl. Now George was not above twitting John Henry on his girlless condition, and it was with such an amiable intent in mind that he slipped into the seat beside him on the trolley.

"Bet you been marking a girl J. H.," he began. Then, as John Henry maintained a silence, he began to be dignified. "And I'll wager she can't hold a candle to the peach she's been to see! Some girl, J. H.," he continued, and proceeded along this line until their destination was reached.

And here the matter might have ended except for George's parting shot as their ways separated. "When you going to see your girl again?"

That question was overheard by John Henry's mother, approaching down a side street on her way home from her Wednesday evening Sewing Circle. Not for worlds would she have let her son know that she had learned the real reason for his journeyings to Milford. But in her heart she was indignantly pleased. Her John Henry being like other boys and actually calling on a girl! Well, her nephew George would have to look out once her boy got started! A sentiment very maternal and proper.

Oddly enough, there was the very finest grain of truth in George's accusation. John Henry was not exactly going to see a girl, but there was a girl whom he was taking great pleasure in seeing. Not every night—not for instance, the night that he had met George—but very frequently John Henry found on his arrival in the one small reading room of the library an occupant at the table—a slim, dusky-haired girl bent over a pile of books, pads and newly sharpened pencils.

Never a word passed between them, but sometimes one caught the glance of the other. There would be a little cough on the girl's part, a bit of self-consciousness on his, a quick dropping of two pairs of eyes and intense absorption. She was very pretty.

Thus, one evening after she had left, John Henry found a notebook she had dropped. Across it was written "Ruth Kent," and as he held it, debating whether to turn it over to the librarian, a picture flittered out from the leaves. It was of her, and on the back he saw that she had inscribed, "Lovingly yours."

Quite absurdly a wave of jealousy swept over him. He decided to take the picture home with him rather than have it given to the person for whom it was intended, and that night, after studying it fondly, he tucked it away between his collar and handkerchiefs in his upper bureau drawer.

It was there his mother found it a week later. The girl's face, with its sincere eyes, confirmed her opinion of her son's good taste. The "lovingly yours" on the back quite took her breath away. Nice young girls with faces like that did not give away their pictures with affectionate superscriptions to casual masculine acquaintances—only to genuine friends or to their betrothed. Why the idea? John Henry must be engaged! She sat weakly down on the edge of the bed. Then she arose, mopped her eyes and hastened, unintentionally, glowing, to share the secret with Ellen Baker, mother of George.

Now if it had not been for George Baker, his aunt might have discovered her mistake. John Henry might have come to his senses and returned the picture, and George himself been spared a blow. As it was, George, worming out of his mother the cause of his aunt's mysterious visit let out the information by degrees. John Henry suddenly became an object of romantic interest for the first time in his life, liked the sensation and began to wish his position was genuine.

It was Ruth Kent, herself, unwittingly, who caught things to a head. One sunny afternoon in the pursuit of subscriptions for a magazine, the proceeds of which were to assist her through college, she rang the bell of the house of John Henry, unaware that she was performing an act of destiny.

For John Henry's mother, suddenly confronting the original of the photograph in her son's bureau drawer was seized with the wish to be nice to her future daughter-in-law, while not disclosing to her, without her son's permission, that she shared his secret.

"Come in, my dear," she invited cordially. "Such a hot afternoon! And I was just going to make myself a lemonade. So much nicer to have company to share it."

Or, the cool, smiling Ruth told her she wanted to earn a little money for her trousseau, of course, divined her hesitancy, and how she was starting in a place where she knew so few people. At that point John Henry's step was heard on the porch outside. His mother excused herself and went to meet him.

With a loving hand on his arm, she indicated the room she had just left. "Your—your fiancée is in there, dear!" she told him and thrust him through the doorway.

"BREAD 'N' JELLY"

Being a Tale of Spuds, Whitley, and a Slice of Bread 'n' Jelly.

It really wasn't much of a fight—not a fight with fists, at least. It was more of a wrestling match. Few blows were exchanged, and then only when one of the two had the other firmly gripped about the neck with his arm, holding the opponent's head in a convenient way.

The two lads were in such a position, and Whitley was about to try to poke his fist into Spuds' right eye, when, to the dismay of Whitley, and much to the relief of Spuds' mother, the latter appeared at the back door of the Barthelmew home.

"Richard Barthelmew!" she called. At "Richard" Whitley dropped his fist. He looked sheepishly in Mrs. Barthelmew's direction. He quaked. His arm loosened about Spuds' neck, and Spuds regained his balance.

Spuds was just as surprised as Whitley to hear his mother's voice, but he kept his surprise under control. He did not turn in her direction, but glared hard at poor Whitley who was now edging slowly toward the gate to make his exit from the Barthelmew premises.

"See now, what you've gone 'n' done," said Spuds fixing all guilt to Whitley. "Gone 'n' got me into trouble that's what. What ya gon' do about it an' now, huh?" The tears began to spring from Spuds' eyes.

"A-w-w!" replied Whitley, and with a quick dive he dashed through the gate and hid himself swiftly up the alley.

By this time Mrs. Barthelmew had arrived on the scene of conflict.

"Richard Barthelmew," Richard turned. On his face, streaming with tears now, was the most angelic expression Spuds himself knew he had assumed since the Fourth of July two years before when his father had accused him of tying a batch of baby fire crackers to the cat's tail and setting them off.

"Yes'm," gulped Spuds. "Looks like Spuds is 'in for it,' eh? But Spuds is a clever schemer, as you will see in tomorrow's installment."

who still had considerable to say to her. Part of it ran as follows: "Don't you think you had better wait a little about going to college? You see you are really the first girl I have ever given a moment's thought to, and I assure you I am very serious in believing you are to be the only one. In fact, from now on, I hope to devote my entire life to you." For a bashful amateur he was doing himself proud.

And the girl on his arm was no doubt much impressed, for she raised her eyes to his with a look that said, "I believe every word you utter, John Henry!"

Perhaps George Baker, standing in the corner waiting for the trolley home, caught that look as they passed him, too interested in each other to observe him. At any rate he started suddenly. "So that was why she wasn't at home," he said to himself bitterly.

WITH SCISSORS AND PASTE

Ask your grandmother or grandfather if they ever kept a scrapbook. Chances are they did. Perhaps they still have theirs tucked away in a corner of the attic, forgotten.

Some day you may want to give a party. Then you'll want to know some good stunts to spring on your guests. But, at the last minute you find you can remember no good ones.

Or some time you may want to entertain some friends with a few sleight-of-hand stunts. But you know of none you can do. And right at the moment you may know of no place where you can get any.

A scrap book of articles, fiction stories, cartoons, and so forth, that appear in these columns will prove of no little value many times. It will be valuable as a reference book, and equally as valuable as a book of entertaining reading.

Are you keeping one?

OLD MAN PUZZLE

Add a letter and change a heavy weight into a sound; a thin piece of cloth into a stone; an animal into part of the body.

(Answer to yesterday's: Bathrobe; porter-report; cream-scarer; depart-parted.)

WHO IS HE?

"Hamlet" and "A Midsummer Night's Dream" are two of his works.

... (Yesterday: Sir Robert Peel.)

Normal Notes

Jimmy Peterson has recovered from his recent operation sufficiently to return to his studies.

Mr. Beery, of the music department announces that a class in music appreciation will be given next semester.

William Zebro has been confined to his home for a few days because of illness.

The tryouts for the annual inter-normal oratorical contest will be held on February 10. It is expected that this tryout will arouse a considerable amount of interest this year, as there are several orators of known ability enrolled in the school.

Many of the students have taken advantage of off periods to hear the cases tried in Judge Landis' court. Mr. Sanford's Political Science classes have visited the courtroom as part of their regular class work.

Normal will blossom out in full color for the carnival. Many of the organizations have adopted unique costumes for the event.

The exams occupy most of the attention at the school this week, social functions being forgotten for the time being.

The Buskin Club, the dramatic society of the school, will give its annual formal party on Feb. 4. The members of the club voted to invite twenty-five five from outside their ranks.

The mean annual rainfall for the entire earth is 35 inches.

OLD LADY RIDDLE
Why is a madman equal to two men? (Answer to yesterday's: "What are they which, though always drunk, are never intoxicated?"—Toasts.)

PARTY STUNTS

"Ghosts"
Two persons lie down on their backs on the floor. A sheet is thrown over their bodies, including their heads. The other guests form in a circle about them.

Suddenly one of the persons under the sheet feels himself hit lightly with a stick. As quickly as he can he jerks the sheet off his head and attempts to identify the one who hit him—supposedly one of the guests standing in the circle.

The "trick" to the game is this: The second person under the sheet has in one of his hands a light cane, or stick. With this he reaches over and taps the other person under the sheet. The guests then act as tho they are passing the cane from one to another, and thus mislead the guesser. It may take some time before he tumbles to the joke, and when he does—

"Th' only time you find anybuddy at home any more is when they're in th' bath tub," said Miss Fawn Lippincott, who's soliciting for "Pleasant Moments." Another good thing about a toupee is that you kin be as high-brow as you please.

Rev. William E. Dudley of Winona Gives Interesting Talk to Kiwanis Club

The Rev. William E. Dudley, minister of the First Congregational church of Winona, addressed the Kiwanis club at noon luncheon yesterday. He spoke upon the subject of "The Price of Living Together."

Mr. Dudley said that the basis of all human trouble is misunderstanding, and the unwillingness of people generally to get together in a common cause. This fact is plainly seen in the international situation, and in the economic world there is the tragedy of class hate. The real antagonists are the extremists in both capital and labor. The reactionaries who look upon labor as a commodity, and the radicals who would sweep civilization into the common gutter of an indiscriminate communism. The remedy, continued Mr. Dudley, is a more sympathetic and thorough understanding of the situation.

The supreme function of business is the production of men and the dollar, without vision attached to it is the world's greatest domination.

The speaker emphasized the need of more sympathetic cooperation in community building, and said that the nature of city government should not be a question of politics, but one of service for the greatest good. We should elect men who are qualified for the job in hand, and who are morally sound in the handling of public problems.

Mr. Dudley concluded by paying a tribute to the land of his adoption. There is only room for one flag in this country and that is the star spangled banner, the spirit of a one hundred percent Americanism, made possible by a happy, prosperous and loyal people.

In the evening Mr. Dudley spoke at the Men's Dormitory club of the V. M. C. A. upon "Experiences in a Ten Thousand Mile Journey," he having visited England for three months this past summer after a nine years' absence.

COMMITTEE OF SIX IS NAMED TO VISIT STATE INSTITUTIONS

MADISON, Wis.—Two members of the senate and four from the assembly were appointed by Governor Blaine on Tuesday to visit the charitable and penal institutions of the state. On this investigating committee the governor has named Senators Elmer R. Ridgway, Blighorn, and Senator Oscar R. Olson, Blanchardville, and Assemblymen Fred Hess, Wausau; Elmer A. Keayon, Ghumant; William H. Smith, Linden, and Steven S. Stelowski, Milwaukee.

This committee will organize either Tuesday afternoon or Wednesday and expects to visit some of the nearby institutions this week. This committee inspects the institutions named and files a report with the Finance committee and the legislature, which is made the basis of the building improvements to be granted at the institutions. The committee intends to visit the Mendota hospital and possibly the school for the blind at Janesville this week.

PLANS SAFETY MEASURE

MADISON, Wis.—Senator Bernard N. Moran of Blanchard has in prospect a bill which would require railroad companies to place one man in charge of each mile of track as a further protection to the traveling public. The accidents due to broken rails, especially in cold weather, he considers as in the inevitable class and believes the remedy could be provided in the manner indicated.

FINE FOR RHEUMATISM

Musterole Loosens Up Those Stiff Joints—Drives Out Pain

You'll know why thousands use Musterole once you experience the glad relief it gives.

Get a jar at once from the nearest drug store. It is a clean, white ointment, made with the oil of mustard. Better than a mustard plaster and does not blister. Brings ease and comfort while it is being rubbed on.

Musterole is recommended by many doctors and nurses. Millions of jars are used annually for bronchitis, croup, stiff neck, asthma, neuralgia, pleurisy, rheumatism, lumbago, pains and aches of the back or joints, sprains, sore muscles, bruises, chilblains, frost-bitten feet, colds of the chest (it often prevents pneumonia).

LEGAL PROTECTION FOR THE RED ARROW URGED BY FOWLER

Bill Proposes to Extend Present Law to Include Insignia of 32nd Division

BY FRED L. HOLMES

MADISON, Wis.—The Red Arrow—the insignia of the 32nd division—will probably be protected by an act of the legislature. A bill to accomplish this purpose was offered in the house by Assemblyman Frank H. Fowler, La Crosse. The present law on the statute books protects the insignia of the G. A. R. and other military organizations, and the Fowler bill will extend all of these legal protections to the Red Arrow insignia.

All eggs sold in the state will have to be candied if the bill proposed by Assemblyman A. E. Matheson, Janesville, is enacted into law. Such a measure was introduced in previous legislatures but was defeated. The bill has the support of many of the merchants of the state.

Members of the legislature are discussing the form in which a proposed amendment shall be offered increasing the salary of members of the legislature. The salary of the members is fixed by the state constitution at $50. In order to increase this salary, a constitutional amendment must pass through two successive sessions of the legislature and then be approved by the people. An amendment which would leave it to the legislature to fix salaries was voted down by the people last spring. It is now the plan to offer a new amendment which will definitely increase the salary of legislators from $500 to $1,000 for the term. It is probably in this form that the constitutional proposal will be offered.

WASHINGTON.—The department of labor announced that 305 aliens classed as anarchists were deported from the United States from February 1, 1919 to January 1, 1921.

BOSTON.—Near Admiral Sims, addressing a committee arranged by the Royal Canadian, said it was inconceivable that American citizens of Irish nationality could support the Sinn Fein "knowing that they do about them."

"BROKEN BUTTERFLY"—RIVIERA

A symphony of love and pathos—a drama that moves the heart with its overwhelming appeal—is "The Broken Butterfly," at the Riviera on Thursday. The picture is an adaptation of Pendelo Knapp's great story, Marceene, and presents Lewis J. Cody in a role different from anything the popular actor has ever done heretofore. Darrell Thorne (Lew Cody), a young composer who goes to the Canadian woods seeking inspiration for a symphony, is attracted by the naive simplicity and beauty of Marceene, whom he finds living with a misanthropic and revengeful woman who poses as the girl's aunt, but who in reality has stolen Marceene as a child from her father who had killed her.

The love that develops between Thorne and Marceene is transmitted by the composer into his symphony.

SLIGHT GAIN SHOWN IN POPULATION OF STATE INSTITUTIONS

Only One to Show Decline in Number of Inmates is the State Prison

By J. L. HOLMES

MADISON Wis., Jan. 26.—Only a slight increase in the population of state institutions during the past year is shown by the report of the state Board of Control just made public in the legislature. There has been an increase of 84 in the state institutions that care for insane population and a decrease of 16 in the county institutions where the chronic insane are cared for. At the present time the population for state hospitals is 1,437 and 6,795 at county institutions for insane.

According to this same report the number of feeble-minded is 11,277, a decrease of 28 over a year ago. The penal institutions have a population of 957, a decrease of 70 over one year ago. At the state school at Sparta the population is 1,196, an increase of 11 and the tu-bercular institutions show an increase of 57. The state institutions for tu-bercular institutions have a population of 191 and county institutions population of 656. The total number of people cared for in state institutions is 4,006 and in county institutions 7,551, making a total population in Wisconsin under public care 11,557.

Probably the most notable fact to be reported by the state board of control is the constant decline of population in state prison. Before the war this institution had practically reached 1,000 and at last report had 666 of which 641 are males and only 25 females.

HOME BUILDING PLAN SUGGESTED IN BILL OFFERED BY SKOGMO

Measure Contemplates Program to be Financed by Insurance Companies

BY FRED L. HOLMES

MADISON, Wis.—A home building plan suggested in a bill offered in the state assembly on Wednesday by Senator George B. Skogmo, River Falls, Wis., would permit insurance companies to insure the surplus in home building plans, but would require the owner to have an insurance policy large enough to cover against loss in case of fire.

The plan is one of the most complete in the history of the state, and has been prepared in detail by the Skogmo plan. It is designed to insure the owner of a home against loss in case of fire, and to provide for the building of a new home in case of loss.

The plan provides that every insurance company shall be permitted to insure the surplus in home building plans, and to provide for the building of a new home in case of loss. The plan also provides that the owner of a home must have an insurance policy large enough to cover against loss in case of fire.

HELP COMPETITORS IN ORDER THAT LA CROSSE COUNTY MAY BEAT THE STATE IN BIG SHOW

LA CROSSE EXPERTS ASSIST RIVALS FOR HONOR OF COUNTY

Inexperienced Local Exhibitors Beat Old-Time Showmen in Corn and Oats

THAT La Crosse county will place high up on the list of the annual Wisconsin Corn and Grain show is obvious to the most casual observer looking over the exhibits in the Bids and Chamber of Commerce halls. In the absence of the official report of the judges, it is a fair guess that La Crosse will repeat its record of several former years, and stand highest of all the counties in the state in the number of points won by its exhibitors.

Help Rivals for Honor of County

And if this prediction is verified it will be by virtue of individual and community co-operation, according to men who have been watching preparations for the corn show. It will be because experienced exhibitors of the county who know the show game have spent days of their time helping their competitors select and polish up exhibits which might—in some cases they did—beat their own at the show. All that La Crosse county might keep its laurels green.

County Agent W. R. Spreiter has been combing the county for months, inspecting the grain and other crops of all La Crosse county farms in search of high-grade specimens for exhibit. He has been coaching the inexperienced in the preparation of their exhibits, and spending days helping them select and shape up the proper types. Another corn expert who has been doing the same thing is S. P. Markie, famous all over the northwest for his Silver King corn, and winner of prizes innumerable.

It's not so much to win for your self," said Mr. Markie. "Of course a fellow likes to win. But to have La Crosse county beat the other counties in the state—that is what really counts."

Beat Corn Belt's Best

"When La Crosse county cleans up at the corn show, it means more than people who are not farmers realize. For instance, at this show La Crosse county has beat out the man who won first for ten ears of Golden Glow corn at the big Chicago show. He sent the same exhibit here that he took to Chicago, but it was placed only fifth here. He lives in the southern part of the state, 20 miles south of here. I want to tell you that when corn grown 200 miles north of the corn belt, on light soil such as we have here is against the heavy soil of the corn belt, can beat his exhibit it is a great feather for our county, and a still greater tribute to our farmers. You have to fertilize your soil with brains to get that result."

An interesting feature of the corn show is the fact that two La Crosse county men who have never before been exhibitors have carried off high honors. One of them is Albert Breiwick, West Salem, whose exhibit of oats is one of the finest in the show. Mr. Breiwick was entirely ignorant of show technique, but he was found by County Agent Spreiter, who had a remarkable field of oats, and spent a full day with him preparing the peak which is on exhibit.

Amidst his judges

It took the first prize over oats from all parts of Wisconsin and from neighboring states. Judges found that it was extremely heavy, weighing at the rate of 45.5 pounds per bushel, which would be a good weight even for wheat and is extraordinary for oats. The sample was so heavy that after weighing it the judges examined it minutely for salt or sand, which unscrupulous exhibitors sometimes introduce in such samples to bring up the weight. They found after testing it that the weight was all in the oats.

The second prize for fifty ears of yellow dent corn, one of the largest classes in the show, was taken by the Hyde & Funk exhibit of Golden Glow, winning Joseph Brunner of Ridgeway, Wis., a very close race for the first place. Mr. Brunner, incidentally, won sweepstakes prize for the best corn in the show, and in 1919 was grand champion of the United States.

NEW COURSES OPEN AT NORMAL SCHOOL IN NEXT SEMESTER

Final Examinations are on this Week and Plans are Being Made for Next Semester

The final examinations, which denote the end of the semester, are in full swing at the Normal school this week. All studies for this half year are being completed, and the new semester begins Monday morning.

Though the usual time for beginning a course in the Normal school, as in other schools, is with the opening of the term in the fall, there are many advantages for students who complete their high school course in the next few days, to enter upon their Normal school work. Students just out of high school will find profitable subjects that they may take now in preparation to work at some university or college next fall.

Those who register in any of the regular two-year courses for the preparation of teachers with the beginning of the new semester, can, by remaining in school for the six weeks' summer course next summer, attending school all next year, and the following summer school session, be prepared to teach in the fall of 1922, when ordinarily they would not be permitted to teach until a full year later.

Courses Offered

The courses which will be offered the coming semester include the two year primary course, the two-year grammar grade course, the two-year state graded course, the one and two-year rural school course, the physical education course and the college course. This will probably be the last chance for anyone to enter the two-year course in physical education, as there is some talk of changing the length of the course to three years next fall.

Due to the recent campaign for lower living prices for Normal school students many hundreds and thousands of house keepers have announced lower rates. This quick response is encouraging to the school authorities, and it is expected that soon the prices will be reduced by all those with whom the students are living. Mr. Cotton, president of the Normal school would like to hear from anyone who desires to take in students either as roomers or boarders.

SAGE TEA DARKENS HAIR TO ANY SHADE

Don't Stay Gray! Here's an Old-Time Recipe That Anybody Can Supply

The use of Sage and Sulphur for restoring faded, gray hair to its natural color dates back to grandmother's time. She used it to keep her hair beautifully dark, glossy and attractive. Whenever her hair took on that dull, faded or streaked appearance, this simple mixture was applied with wonderful effect.

But brewing at home is messy and out of date. Nowadays, by asking at any drug store for a bottle of "Wyneth's Sage and Sulphur Compound," you will get this famous old preparation, improved by the addition of other ingredients, which can be depended upon to restore natural color and beauty to the hair.

A well-known downtown druggist says it darkens the hair so naturally and evenly that nobody can tell it has been applied. You simply dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one strand at a time. By morning the gray hair disappears, and after another application or two it becomes beautifully dark and glossy.

This letter is longer than we usually publish but then she has something to say. We believe that such letters must convince you that the "WBU" does offer its students something unusual in real training and help in every way.

Jan. 20, 1921.

To those who are undecided as to what school they should go to, let me tell them what school I attended and how I was treated. I chose the "WBU."

Like a great many others, I was a stranger when I came to La Crosse. I was met at the train by the principal of the school, my baggage was taken care of, and within an hour I was located in a nice private home where I worked for my board and room until I graduated. It would have been impossible for me to have attended school at all if a place where I could work outside of school hours had not been provided. I was never over-run with school work and whenever I did get into any difficulty, whether in my studies or personal problems, the faculty and management were right there to help me out.

I received the last credit for my diploma the day I left school to take work with the State Public School at Sparta, Wis. Although the work was new to me, I had no difficulty in learning it.

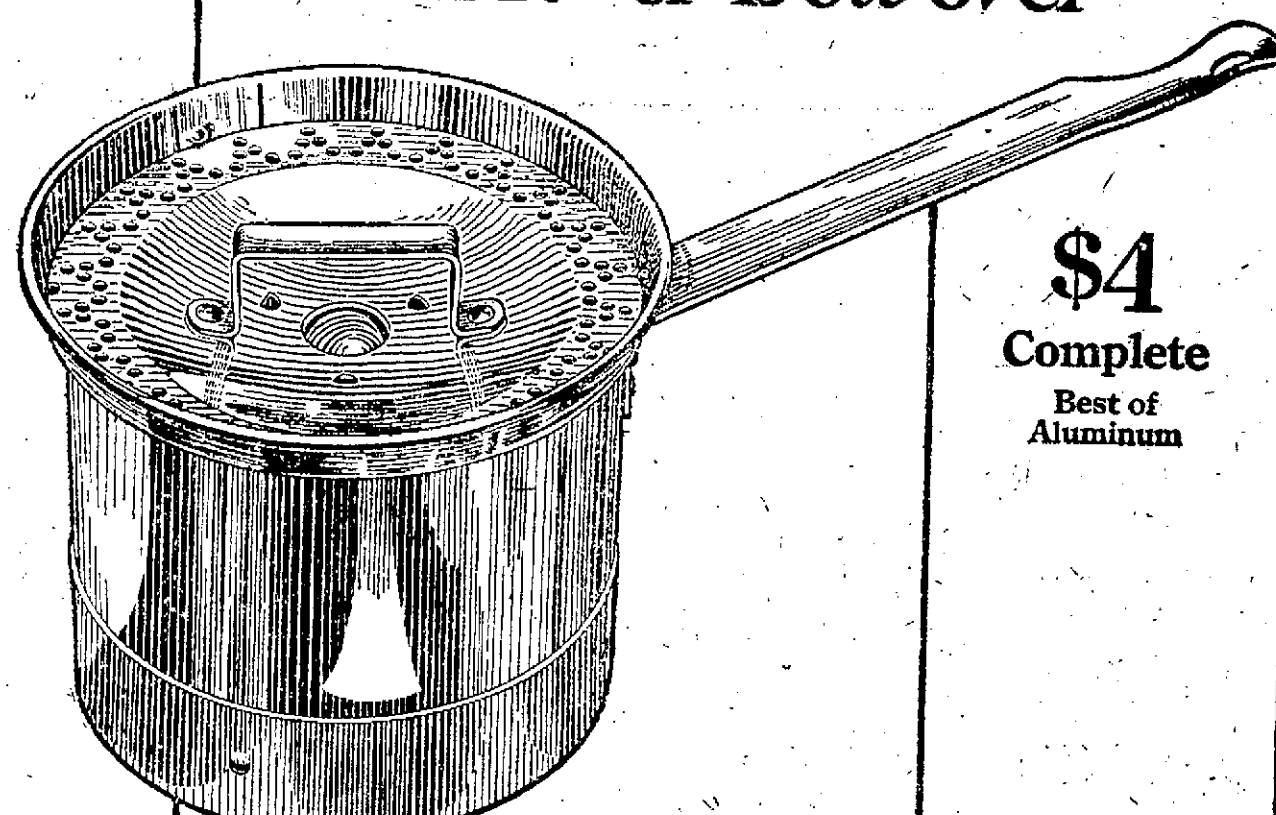

I owe all my thanks to the school. I chose the Wisconsin Business University, and what it has done for me I know it will do for you.

Although my present work is different from what I had been doing before, I like it just as well and even better. My work consists of billing goods, operating the telephone, making out credits, statements and railroad claims. Beginning with the first of January I receive $75 per month. The working hours are from eight to twelve in the morning and from half past one to half past five in the afternoon with the exception of Saturdays. On those days we work only in the forenoon, and this is very convenient for me as I live only fifteen miles away from here and so get home nearly every week end.

I am still as interested in the "WBU" as I was when a student there and I always take pleasure in telling others, who are contemplating a business course, about your system of teaching and your continued interest in your old students. I certainly am proud to be able to say that I am a graduate of the "WBU."

No More "Blue Mondays"

Isn't it worth a great deal to any woman who can scrub fifty-two "Blue Mondays" from her calendar annually? The modern woman who sends her washing to us is carefree and contented.

Why shouldn't she be when a big load is removed from her shoulders?

You can be as carefree when Monday comes if you follow her example and send your laundry to us.

Priscilla Prue says: "While cooking dinner yesterday I stewed my tomatoes first—in our Perco-Pot. Then, while cooking the meat, I let the tomatoes set, off the fire. The double bottom held the heat and kept the tomatoes piping hot!"

HOW much food do you burn in a week? How many aluminum pots do you burn out in a year?

Perco-Pot can't burn because the steel jacketed bottom provides an air space between the aluminum and steel bottoms. An even cooking heat is assured and no flame touches food or aluminum.

Perco-Pot can't boil over because the water bubbles through the perforated rim and thence to the center of the cover, and down through the valve into the pot again!

This is the pot that pays its way. Saves its cost in one month's time!

BUSINESS BOYS OF Y. M. C. A. TO MEET W. B. U. WEDNESDAY

Teams on Par and One of Best Games of Season is Expected at the "Y" Tonight

SENIOR TEAM GOES TO WINONA WEDNESDAY NIGHT

Play Campion College at Prairie du Chien Saturday

The senior business boys of the Y. M. C. A. are scheduled to meet the Wisconsin business university in the "Y" gymnasium Wednesday night, with the business boys seconds matched against the Mercury's in the preliminary game. The first game will start promptly at 8 o'clock.

Both teams are in the pink of condition and much is expected in the way of a lively contest when the two teams meet tonight. The business boys will enter the game with a clean record, while the university five has lost but one game—that to the Marinello quintet, by two points.

These two teams fall in line with the caliber of three other teams playing in the city, namely, the La Crosse business college, the Marinellos and the Olympics. Since the Marinellos and the W. B. U. had an even break, the game tonight ought to be of interest to the other teams.

On Friday night two other teams of this so-called league meet at the Y. M. C. A. gymnasium. The teams are the Olympics and the La Crosse business college. The winner of this game will play the Marinello aggregation. The preliminary for the Friday night game will be between the "Twisters," a fast quintet composed of boys between the ages of 13 and 15 and the Brownies, a junior "A" team of the Y. M. C. A. This game promises to be an even fight as each of these teams has won one from the other.

The senior team of the "Y" goes to Winona Wednesday evening to play the strong "Y" team of that city. On Saturday night, the senior team goes to Prairie du Chien to play the Campion college team.

"LISTEN LESTER" AT LA CROSSE TONIGHT

No musical comedy on Broadway achieved the popularity that "Listen Lester" did, and which will be the offering at the La Crosse theater tonight. Its plot, filled with capitalizing songs and snappy dances, concerns the tribulations of a flirtatious gambler who falls into the clutches of a more sophisticated widow. Pretty girls who crowd the southern winter resort surround the colonel in Florida, a port hotel clerk, a weak but willing porter, the lecher who listens much, but not well, furnish the story with laughter and jokes that have become classics. The music is rollicksome, the costumes gorgeous, the whole a production such as La Crosse has not seen for many a day. The cast is headed by the popular comedian Fred Heider, who will be seen in his original role of the "flip" hotel clerk and includes June Roberts, Delano Dell, Earl Hight, Frances Donegan, Rene Brown, Betty Kirkbride, Claire Greaville, Dorothy Roberts and The Four Entertainers, and the daintiest dancing chorus ever seen here.

LA CROSSE CURLERS BREAK EVEN IN CURLING CONTESTS AT GALESVILLE BONSPIEL

La Crosse curlers who participated in the Bonspiel at Burns' anniversary held in Galesville last Monday broke even with the veteran curlers of that city in two games rolled.

The first contest started at two o'clock in the afternoon with Dusty's Rink of young colts pitted against the veteran Hunter Rink of curling fame. At the conclusion of the twelfth head the score stood a tie, 8 to 8. In order to break the tie two more heads were played which again resulted in a tie with a score of 9 to 9. In the two additional heads which were rolled, the La Crosse men scored two shots at each head winning the event by a score of 13 to 9.

The evening match started promptly at 7:30 with Dusty's Colts again pitted against the veteran curlers of the north. In that the condition of the ice was much better in the evening, both teams were able to put up a better exhibition of the famous Scotch game. The Galesville curlers won the second match by a score of 19 to 10.

The lineup for the Colts was as follows: Myron Locke, keeper of the king's suspender button. Jack Sullivan, the football star at high school. Charlie Cone, a keen curler and a good sport. Arthur Dusty, the man who skipped the game.

The Galesville supporters and participants of the game are coming to the city Thursday to play the locals in matches in connection with the carnival sports here providing the weather man makes ice by that time.

COLLEGE SANS KAYO

Boxing will never do for a college sport, say some of the "pros" and "praxies."

Sending young men out into the business world to swim with cauliflower ears and bent noses is their idea of giving them a bum start. They admit pugilism is a wonderful sport.

If fans could enthuse—as the British have learned to do—over the mere scoring of points, boxing would have a chance in the colleges. But in America a boxing match without a kayo—or at least without a few knockdowns—gets the razz.

Boxing without the wallop won't go.

Some schools are attempting to teach glove tapping in their gyms. Maybe they'll have some success.

But without the cauliflower ears and bent noses the college ring will never compete with the college gridiron.

BOSTON BRAVES OF 1914 SPLIT UP BY TRADING OF MEN

Trade of "Rabbit" Maranville is Most Recent Elimination of Wonder Men

BOSTON, Mass.—The passing from these parts of the last of the Boston Braves who in 1914 made a sensational rush from last place to first in the National league race and topped their feat with a world's championship, was indicated today.

The trade of "Rabbit" Maranville to Pittsburgh marked the most recent elimination of baseball's wonder men of six seasons ago. The miracle man, George T. Stallings, has left the club to become part owner and manager of the Rochester Internationals. Little Dick Rudolph, one of the three pitchers who contributed to the team's success, had been given the right to negotiate for his transfer elsewhere, probably to the Detroit Tigers. And now Hamming Hank Gowdy is ready to sing his Swan song.

Gowdy, who came here today, said he had heard that he, too, was to be traded. Manager Fred Mitchell admitted there was another trade in the air to bolster up the Braves, but he withheld details.

MAN O' WAR GOES TO HIS NEW HOME IN BLUE GRASS

BERLIN, Md.—Man O'War, Samuel D. Biddle's famous 3-year-old racing champion, left this afternoon for his future home in Kentucky, where he will enter a stud. Man O'War is due to arrive in Lexington late tomorrow.

Only about twenty-five persons saw the departure. The great racer left the Riddle farm five miles from here, shortly after noon, accompanied by Trainer Fustell, and three attendants.

Man O'War was well blanketed for the trip to the railroad, being led all the way. The weather was cold and blustery.

BABE RUTH'S NAME ON BALL BRINGS IN THE MAZUMA

INDIANAPOLIS.—Babe Ruth, the mighty Yankee hitter, has proved himself as powerful with the pen as with the bat. The Gibeault home here, a shelter for orphan lads, sent out recently a call for financial aid. Ruth, who received some of his early training in such a home, autographed 500 baseballs, which were sold by the Indiana Knights of Columbus for the benefit of the parentless youngsters.

BADGERS DEFEAT MICHIGAN QUINT

MADISON, Wis.—The University of Wisconsin basketball team defeated the University of Michigan Monday night, 25 to 17. Capt. Taylor of the Wisconsin team, who is heading the list of conference pointgetters, made fifteen of the twenty-five points. The first half ended with Wisconsin leading, 14 to 6.

PUSH BALLERS COME TO MARKET SQUARE FOR GAME TONIGHT

In that the Y. M. C. A. pushball team will be unable to come out to meet the Wittich forces in a battle on the Market square tonight, and in order that the host from the normal school, who have challenged any team in the city may be given a battle royal, the writer asks for an assemblage of pushballers at the market rink at 9:15 tonight to meet the normalites.

All together—let's go. It will be a heap of fun so get there on time and you will get on the team tonight.

MUNICIPAL ICE IS BIG IDEA

There Are Places in Every City and They Should be Put to Use BY PETER P. CARNEY, Editor National Sports Syndicate

If there isn't a municipal skating rink in your city, now is the time to get busy and interest your city fathers in providing one. And if they will provide more than one, so much the better.

There is an opportunity in every city for some individual or organization to render a real community service by putting forward a plan to provide safe and convenient public skating places for the boys and girls and their older brothers and sisters who desire to skate.

This is not a new idea. It is one that has been tried successfully in many cities and will be found practical in any place where ice forms in the cold season. The time and attention necessary to insure the success of the project is slight in proportion to the returns and satisfaction achieved. There is no reason why any one should remain in doors and be a house plant when there is a place for a healthy pastime like ice skating in the vicinity.

If you want to know how to construct a skating rink, or how to conduct skating events, send a letter to Mr. Carney, care of the Sporting Editor of this paper, and the information will be furnished.

FANS FROM OMAHA SEE THE STRANGLER DEFEAT CADDOCK

NEW YORK.—Among the spectators at the wrestling bout here Monday night in which Ed (Strangler) Lewis successfully defended his title against Earl Caddock, were forty men and women admirers of the challenger who traveled from Omaha to see him in action.

Caddock Tuesday showed no ill-effects as a result of the grueling bout. Old time wrestling fans declared the match was one of the most strenuous ever seen in the east and marveled that neither wrestler suffered serious injury.

HERZOG IS GIVEN RELEASE: FREED OF ALL SCANDAL

CHICAGO, Ill.—Announcement by President Veech of the Cubs that G. Herzog had been given his unconditional release came with no surprise to fans who had been acquainted with the policy set forth by Manager Evers. The latter made it known immediately upon his appointment as leader of the north sideers that he intended to build a new team from young material and the release of Herzog, following the news of the release of Fred Merkle, simply bears out the advance plans of the boss.

However, because of a lot of unjust publicity given Herzog during the investigation of crookedness in baseball near the end of last season, there were many followers of the game who feared the real cause for Herzog's dismissal was the connection of his name with those being investigated.

HANK COWDY SIGNS WITH BOSTON AND KILLS TRADE RUMOR

BOSTON, Mass.—Hank Gowdy today signed with the Boston Nationals under the new baseball contract, in which he subscribes to recognition of Judge Landis as the arbiter of all disputes.

The action of Gowdy set at rest rumors that he was to be traded. With the passing of Maranville, Gowdy and Rudolph are the only members of the Boston Braves who in 1914 made a sensational rush from last place to first in the National league race and topped their feat with a world championship, was indicated today.

The trade of Maranville to Pittsburgh marked the most recent elimination of baseball's wonder men of six seasons ago. The "miracle man," George T. Stallings, has left the club to become part owner and manager of the Rochester Internationals. Rudolph, one of the three pitchers who contributed to the team's success, has been given the right to negotiate for his transfer elsewhere.

OLD BOYS' DEMAND RIGHT TO COMPETE IN CARNIVAL EVENTS

Race Scheduled to Take in Skaters Over Forty-nine Years of Age

Just as W. J. Wittich, director of contests for the La Crosse Winter Sports Carnival, thought he was "sitting pretty" as far as the sports program was concerned, and was taking the first deep breath for over a month, he was stopped on the street by three determined-looking men.

They asked, or rather insisted, that the older men be allowed to compete in the skating events to be pulled during the carnival.

The result is the "Old Boy's Skating Race," open to all men over 40 years of age. This event will be held on both Thursday and Friday nights at the Market Square rink.

A goodly number of entries have already been made by men who were prominent as skaters a few years ago and it is expected that some real speed marks will be hung up for the youngsters (who only think they can skate) to shoot at.

HORNSBY PEDDLES LIFE INSURANCE

Base hits and life insurance!

Rogers Hornsby peddles both. The ring of his 370 gaited bat draws the fans to the ball parks six months out of the year.

The search of his pen adds to insurance policy holders the other six. Roger isn't leading the insurance league. But he is getting his toes dug into a secure future.

Diamond days don't go on forever, he knows. So he's grooming a sideline. It isn't likely that the Card star will settle back into a manager's shoes when he's through with baseball.

"Lone Wolf"
Rogers is of a quiet, retiring disposition. While on the road with the team he doesn't pal round much with the gang. His teammates call him the "Lone Wolf."

When he shows up on the ball lot he's all business. He's leading in the attack, both on the field and at the bat.

He plays the insurance game the same way. But when he's talking to a prospect his conversation peeps up. St. Louis citizens consider it an honor to have their insurance papers signed by the same hand that signs one of the fattest contracts in baseball.

Hits Like Monus
Rogers, like Monus Wagner, hits from the right side of the plate. The left-hand swingers have grabbed off most of the gravy in the batting averages. There has always been rivalry between the righters and the lefties.

Before 1900, practically all the big hitters stood on the right side of the plate.

Brawny and Fast
Players frequently shifted from the right-hand side of the plate to the left, believing that this style was their only chance to lead.

The last year that the great Hornsby led the National Leaguers was 1911.

Since then the swat leadership has been monopolized by left-hand hitters. Rogers has broken their long run. The brilliant Cardinal is a brawny little fellow. He stands 5 feet 11 1/2 inches tall and weighs around 185. His dash in going down offsets the extra stride right-hand hitters have to take.

Hornsby is still on the market. But Branch Rickey wants playing talent in return. The cash which McGraw has been lavishly offering doesn't mean anything.

High-class ball players are the only kind that would strengthen Rickey's ball club. All the money in the world wouldn't help keep the Cards in the fight for the 1921 pennant.

HELP MEN NOW IS AIM OF CHURCHES DECLARES SHAVER

Interesting Sermon on Purpose of Religion is Given by Presbyterian Pastor

"To save the souls of men from future torment, without reminding them of the obligations of present helpfulness was the mistake of the early evangelists," said Reverend Claude R. Shaver, in his morning sermon at the First Presbyterian church last Sunday.

This was the fourth in a month's series of discourses on "The Church" which is being offered from this pulpit. The theme "How the church of today is helping the world" was based upon the text from Zachariah (8:13) "So I will save you and ye shall be a blessing."

In part the minister said—"The responsibility of reciprocal helpfulness is not a new obligation for Christian people. The words quoted were spoken more than twenty-four hundred years ago, and were even then, an echo of the older admonition spoken to Abraham a thousand years before that time. They remind us that no life should feel that it is an end in itself. No nation can afford to do this today. The paths of that ancient Hebrew people, was their conceit of self sufficiency. For this, they were called a 'curse' by the author of our text. Today the man or woman who joins church merely for the selfish end of future salvation will be disappointed in the quest for soul peace. But the lives which respond to a call of God, as did Abraham—that they may become a greater blessing—will, in time, find the real meaning of salvation. They will also see that the divine economy cares for all that is sufficient and helpful in their life, and likewise, in the organization called the Church."

"To this end the church of today is an illuminating influence. Like the candlestick pictured by the ancient prophet, it ministers in quietness and in constructive information—not by might nor power, but by my spirit saith the Lord."

"It has given men a feeling of dignity for their own life. This is not the conceit of the 'super man' which we saw yonder in central Europe before the war; but the encouragement to feel that life, in the image of God, is worth living for the best purposes. It prompted the spirit of liberty; which the historian Motley says, was imparted to Holland, England and America by the Calvinistic churches of the middle ages. Such liberty was not a license to indulge tastes and senses, but the privilege of high thinking and helpful co-operative service. It is a liberty which will stimulate the young men and women of our own city during the carnival season to keep their lives pure and unsmirched by questionable pleasures and debasing indulgences."

"The church is helping the world also, by her campaign against the superstitions of heathen lands. In a leading magazine, last month, a letter from a missionary in rural China is used in a display feature of a soap advertisement; in which the minister banished the superstition of incantation with good soap. But that was only the entering wedge of fuller illumination explaining the full dignity of life and its eternal soul possibilities. It is this heroic and exalted ministry that has inspired and sent out scores of workers now concentrated everywhere as public benefactors. For example, Jacob Riis, whom President Roosevelt said was our 'most useful citizen'; Dr. W. T. Grenfell, traveling with his healing remedies and hospital ships, the thousands of miles of bleak Labrador coast is another. David Livingstone blazing the trail for commerce amid the jungles of Africa and preparing the way for Cecil Rhodes the empire builder and benefactor of education, has a corner in Westminster Abbey. Yet he caught
